ANNUAL REPORT.

THE statistics of the work of this Association for the summer of 1887, are as follows: Total number sent out, four thousand two hundred and eighteen. Of these, the number sent to the country, was three thousand eight hundred and eleven (3681 children, 130 adults) for average stay of seven and one-half days. The number sent to the seashore, one hundred and five (56 adults, and 49 children) average stay nine and one-half days. Sent on invitation, three hundred and two (277 children, 25 adults), average stay of twelve days. Permanent homes were found for ten children.

The work of the Board of Managers is always measured by the amount of money received. The increase of numbers therefore testifies to the generous impulse of the public at large, and to the great faithfulness of those who carry out their desires.

These managers are not a body who simply supervise the work of others under employ—but are themselves the actual workers, who, while many are fleeing from the heat-radiating bricks and brazen skies of the summer city, stay to thread their way among little streets and alleys, searching out the children, preparing clothing if need be, hurrying to trains at early morning, at noon, at night, taking personal care of the helpless ones—expecting no reward except that which always comes from self-denying service of love.

The general plan of work of this society from the beginning, has been to board the children among comfortable farmers within easy distance of the city.

We seek those houses which are distant from towns and railroad trains, taking the children into the very heart of nature and real country life.

The farmers are generally very patient with their oft-times trying city guests, give them the privileges of house and barn, and treat them to long rides a-field or through the surrounding country. The house-mothers are forbearing with their childish faults, kind advisers in their troubles and dissensions, careful of their well-worn clothes, proving in hundreds of instances the life long friends of the children—continuing to invite them for visits when they are no longer sent out by the society. The small board paid does not measure the service rendered by many of these country friends of ours. To assist them on the moral side of our work we propose this year to extend an experiment, first made last season, and to locate in neighborhoods where we have a number of children, older persons as caretakers, who shall have some oversight of the conduct of the children, and as far as possible guide their recreations into healthful channels.

One can hardly realize the effect of the change from city to country on the untrained mind of a child. The first feeling is no doubt one of oppression. The wide, seemingly unbounded spaces, the solemn stillness—especially of the night—the dim evening light of the country farm house conspire often, no doubt, to homesickness. Grown in a day or two familiar with his surroundings, the large and unaccustomed liberty then tempts to license. A whole new world is opened up which the child feels he must investigate, sometimes, perhaps unwisely. We are sure, that a friend at hand who will help him to control, first, homesickness, then lawlessness, and direct his mind to those things which will most profit him in his country visit, will contribute greatly to the benefit of the country week.

An appeal in behalf of the city children made in the National Baptist early last summer attracted the attention of some warm hearted people in the town of Lewisburg, Penna., and led them to invite fifty children for a week's visit. Though the time given for preparation was short, we responded with alacrity to the invitation, gathered up the children from all parts of the city and despatched them on the appointed day and train. The citizens of Lewisburg welcomed the little party with open arms, distributed them in twos and threes among the families willing to receive them, and made that week a golden memory in the hearts of all their little guests.

A similar experiment, though on a smaller scale, was made in the towns of Moorestown and Hammonton, N. J. It was of these kind friends a little girl said on her return: "The people of New Jersey are so different from any I ever saw before, they think so much more of little children."

We earnestly covet an increase of this sort of entertainment for our children. It brings them into individual contact with noble-minded, disinterested people, whose gentleness and refinement will influence the character, while country air and sunshine invigorate the body.

We confidently trust these experiments are but the beginning of a broad work of this kind, and that other towns in this and neighboring states will co-operate with us after the noble, hearty manner of those we have named.

The daily excursion branch of the Association has been carefully revised, and its methods improved during the past year. By printing our own street car tickets we are able to trace and redeem all tickets given out by us, and prevent their misuse.

Though we were not able to get reduction as in previous years on some of the tramway routes, we are glad to say the usual number of persons received the benefit of the day excursions. Large numbers of poor women whose families prevent them from leaving the city with their very little ones; working girls and boys who can take only an occasional half-holiday, greatly enjoy these trips on the rivers, and visits to the park and surrounding country. Here we must thank those holders of Zoological Garden tickets who have heretofore donated them to our use, and beg they will kindly remember us again the coming season. To those whose purses allow of few amusements a visit to the "Zoo" is a never-ceasing wonder and delight.

The number sent on these excursions were:

1835 on Delaware River steamboats.

4564 on Schuylkill, (Fairmount steamboats.)

2792 to Zoological Garden.

7442 to the Park.

3234 to Sanitarium.

Total, 19,847.

We have assisted in several Mission and Kindergarten School excursions, one of the pleasantest of which was the June trip of the Beach Street Mission pupils, seventy-seven in number, to Cape May.

A glance at our contributor's list shows the interesting fact that this eharity is increasingly a work of children for children. The interior details as they come to us, of these efforts of little folks to do good to others, would make many interesting pages. For want of space the story of the Pansy Club and of others who by parlor fairs and entertainments have added greatly to our funds, cannot be told here; but to show how the interest follows round the year, we would mention the holiday dinner of the Children's Christmas Club at the hall, 18th and Chestnut streets, to which about fifty Country Week Beneficiaries were invited, treated most royally by their little hosts, and sent home loaded with substantial gifts.

Our thanks are due to the kindred associations who have co-operated with us during the summer. Among them are the Sanitarium, Cape May Point House, Mercer Memorial Home, and the Children's Sea Shore House at Atlantic City. Our steadfast friends, the newspapers of Philadelphia, also the Pennsylvania and Reading railroads, are entitled to our warmest regard. Without their kind and watchful interest it would be quite impossible to carry on our work.

We desire also to acknowledge one-half and one-third rates accorded by Fairmount and Delaware steamers, and by Spruce and Pine, and Arch Street railways.

In conclusion the C. C. W. Association gratefully acknowledges the receipt of its first bequest, $2000, from the estate of Miss Mary Anna Williamson, of Langhorne, for many years a valued friend and contributor. It is proposed to retain this sum for permanent investment.
